Centre for Sustainable Development (CSD) and IMET Global kickstart project ‘LEAD’ (Leadership in Education for Action and Development). Objective of this program is to enhance functional, and to an extent sector-specific, competencies across levels, but also several –soft skills, such as communications skills, presentation skills, stress management and team building skills. The biggest challenge for professional graduates is unemployability due to lack of functional skills. A recent survey by NASSCOM-Mckinsey has pointed out that only 1 in 4 professional graduate is employable. Shortfall in appropriately trained faculty is another aspect of the issue. The students usually focus in scoring higher grades in examinations but do not get opportunities to improve functional skills like leadership, interpersonal skills, project management, decision making, interdisciplinary knowledge, crisis management, creativity, innovation, communication skills. As part of project ‘LEAD’, CSD and IMET Global jointly organised Career Meets on “Grooming Student: Discover, Learn & Prepare To Meet Industry Expectations” from 20-22 October, 2011 at SIRDA Institute of Engineering and Technology, TR Abhilashi Memorial Institute of Engineering and Technology and Government Polytechnic College Sundernagar. The themes and various sessions covered under the program were
